Mr. Parminder Singh is an experienced and accomplished orthopaedic and trauma surgeon. With a reputation for his knowledgeable and empathetic approach, Mr Singh recognises the importance of choosing the right doctor for your treatment and takes the time to discuss all your options with you to ensure the right outcome.

A board member and editorial chairman of the International Society of Hip Arthroscopy & Joint Preservation Surgery, Mr. Singh has a special interest in young adult hip disease including femoro acetabular impingement and joint preservation surgery, hip injections treatment for early arthritis, hip and knee replacements, including using the anterior approach and patient specific instrumentation, key hole hip and knee surgery.

In addition to his surgical commitments, Mr. Singh is currently an editor of the Oxford textbook of Orthopaedic and Trauma Surgery and has published numerous research papers, book chapters and is a reviewer for the British Journal of Bone and Joint Surgery.

He has provided supportive research to the design and developments of new hip replacements and co-designed with world renowned hip surgeons, new instrumentation and implants for hip arthroscopy and joint preservations surgery.
